

Ep 24 Show Notes: A Special Halloween Episode with Leslie Ellis | 10/31/2024

Happy Anniversary to #TheEdgeofEverydayPodcast!

This month marks the 3rd ANNIVERSARY of when I started this podcast (October of 2021) at TalkRadio.NYC and it marks the one year Anniversary of when I moved the podcast to MaximizeU.Life. Of course, we also stream on all your favorite podcast platforms.

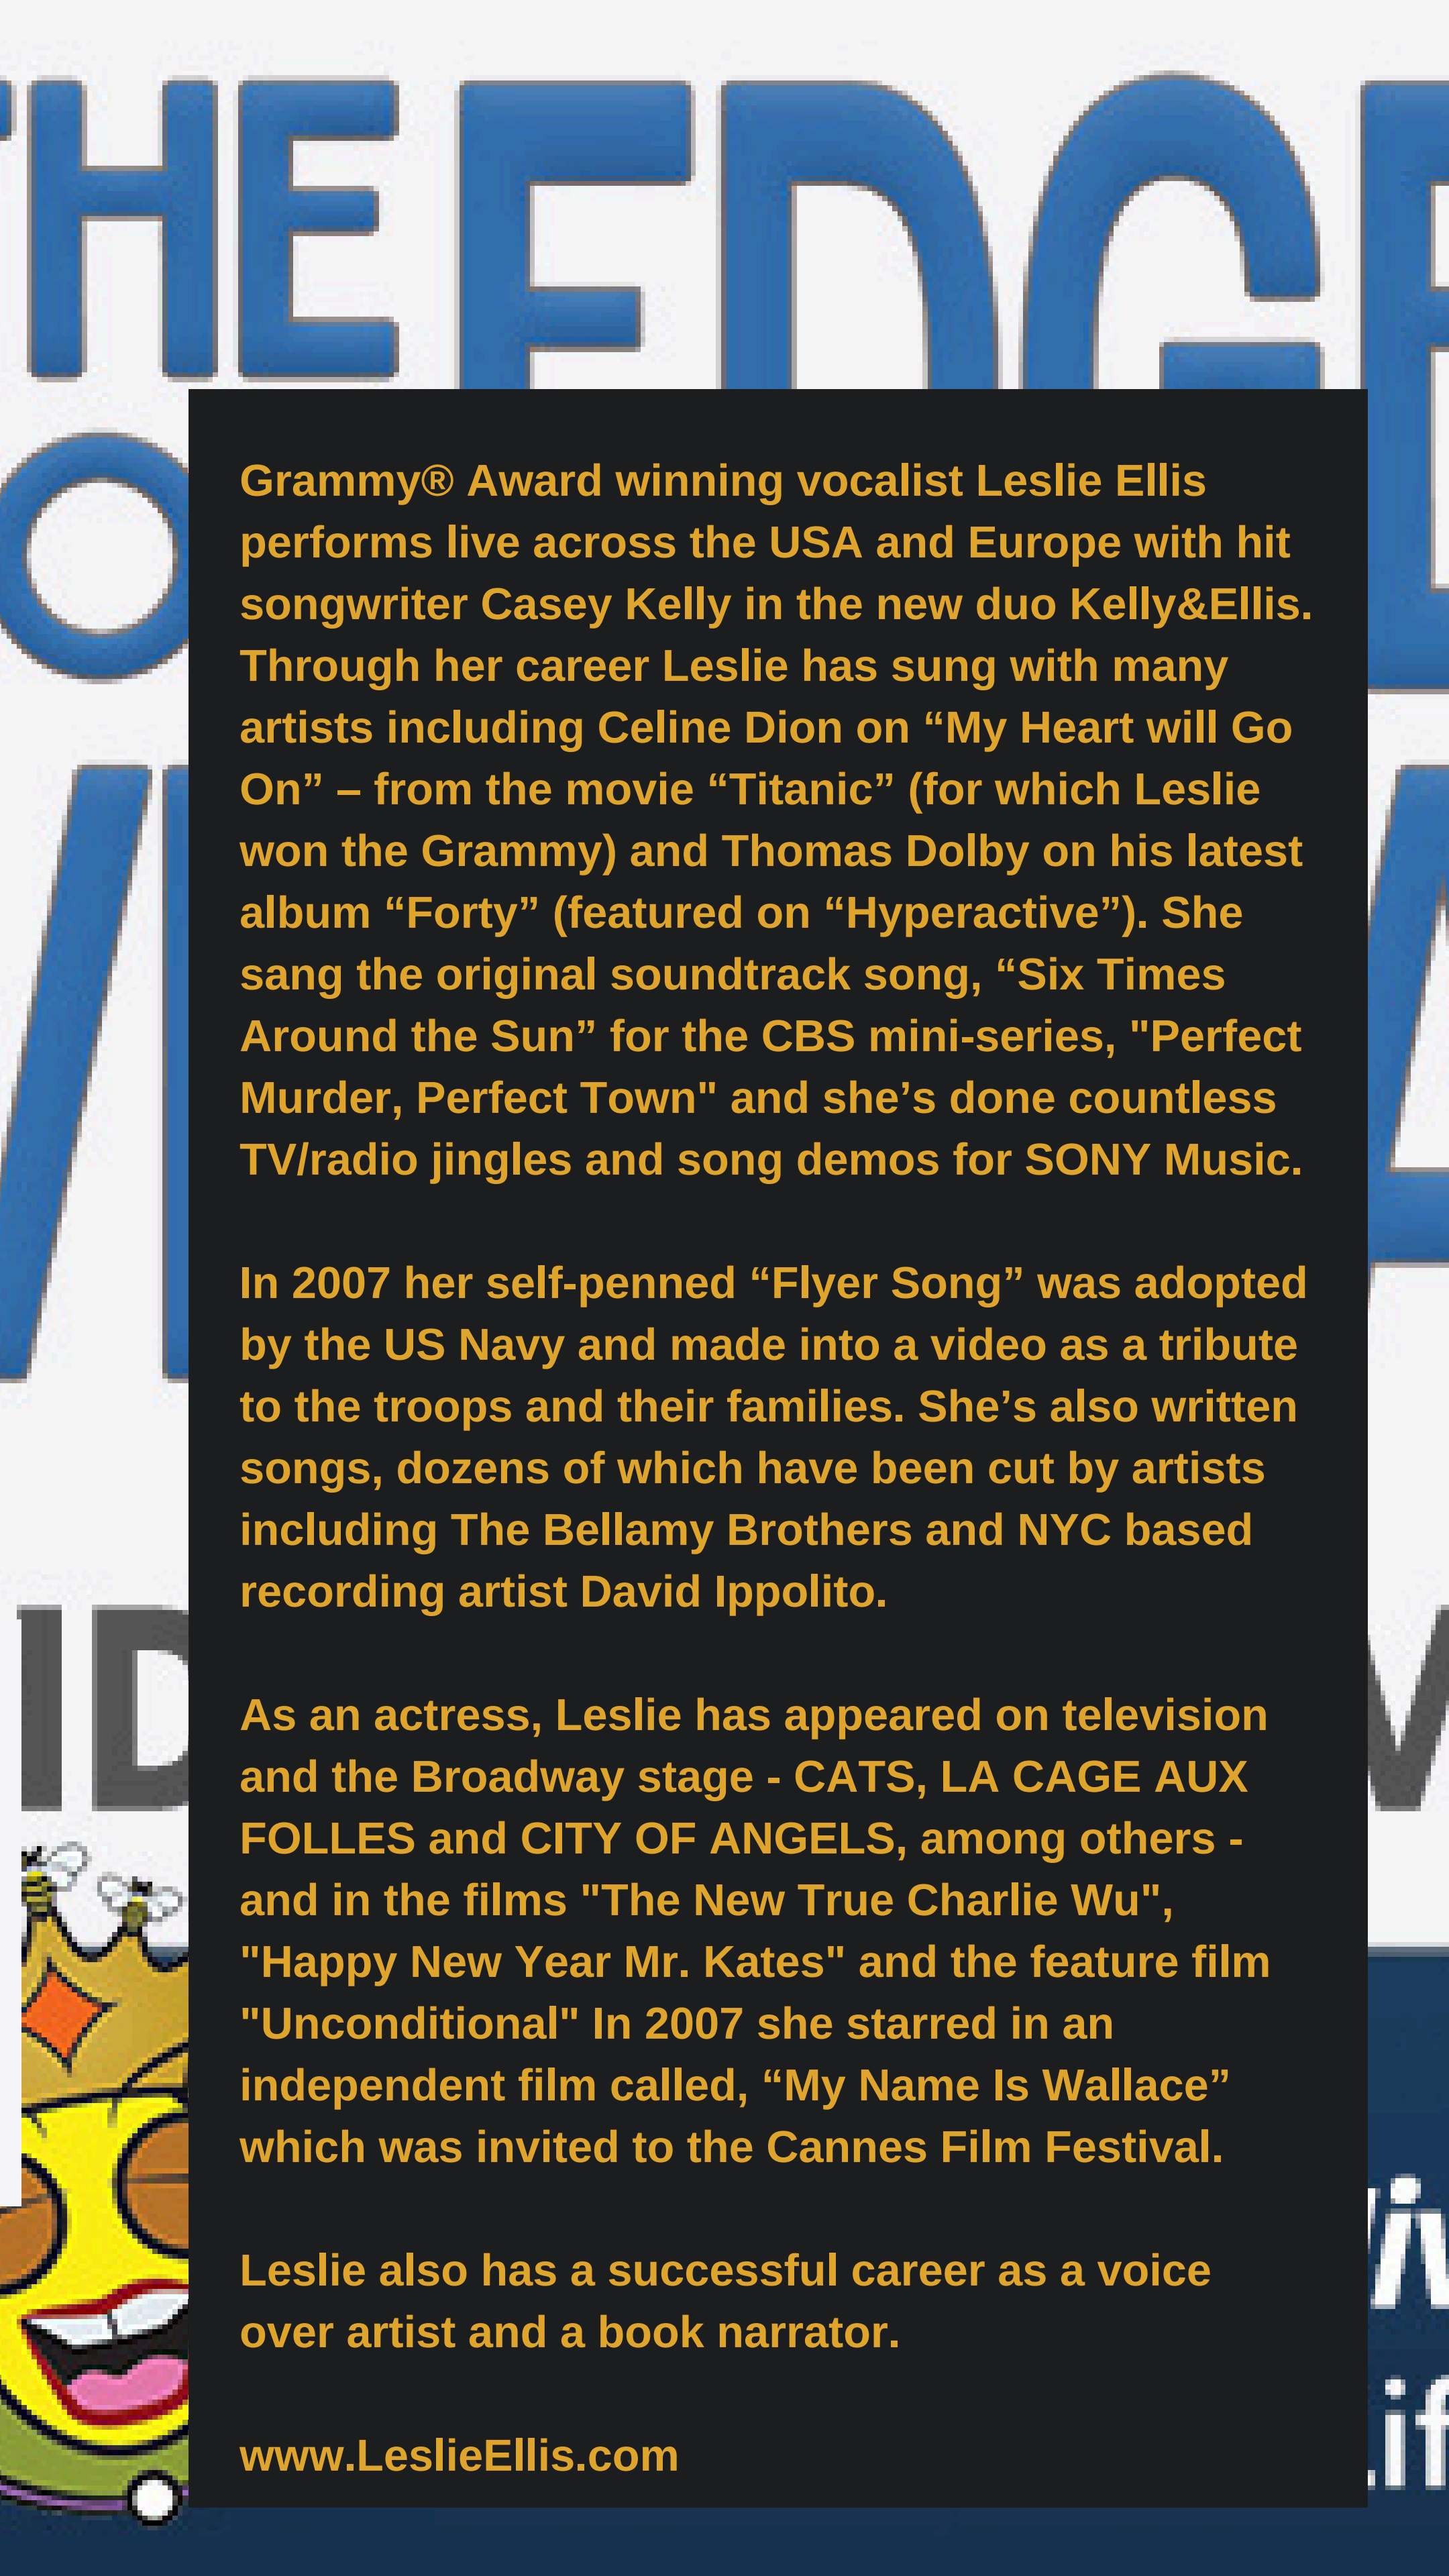

And Happy Halloween – Happy Samhain - Happy Witches New Year!

For today's episode we are doing things a bit differently. Only fitting for an anniversary and for Halloween, right? I usually highlight my guests completely but in today's episode – to celebrate and recalibrate the show – I'll be sharing more about myself. This episode is an updated version of one that I recorded on Halloween in 2022 for my one year anniversary at TalkRadio.NYC. The original video of that episode will be reposted along side this updated audio.

In this episode, we touch on...

- What is Halloween based on?
- What is witchcraft? What is the witch archetype?
- My own spiritual journey and pagan leanings...
- AND our special GUEST - Grammy award winning singer/songwriter - and one of my best friends - LESLIE ELLIS!
- Its mere days before the 2024 Election in the US and women are on The Edge, angry and ready for Roeverember!
- All this and SO much more...

Grammy® Award winning vocalist Leslie Ellis performs live across the USA and Europe with hit songwriter Casey Kelly in the new duo Kelly&Ellis. Through her career Leslie has sung with many artists including Celine Dion on “My Heart will Go On” – from the movie “Titanic” (for which Leslie won the Grammy) and Thomas Dolby on his latest album “Forty” (featured on “Hyperactive”). She sang the original soundtrack song, “Six Times Around the Sun” for the CBS mini-series, "Perfect Murder, Perfect Town" and she’s done countless TV/radio jingles and song demos for SONY Music.

In 2007 her self-penned “Flyer Song” was adopted by the US Navy and made into a video as a tribute to the troops and their families. She’s also written songs, dozens of which have been cut by artists including The Bellamy Brothers and NYC based recording artist David Ippolito.

As an actress, Leslie has appeared on television and the Broadway stage - CATS, LA CAGE AUX FOLLES and CITY OF ANGELS, among others - and in the films "The New True Charlie Wu", "Happy New Year Mr. Kates" and the feature film "Unconditional" In 2007 she starred in an independent film called, “My Name Is Wallace” which was invited to the Cannes Film Festival.

Leslie also has a successful career as a voice over artist and a book narrator.
